

We're family.

“Why do you love your kids just a little more when they’re asleep?

Why do you have to put a jumper on when your mother feels cold?

Why does everyone want to save the earth
but no one wants to help mum with the dishes?

Why do children and grandparents share their own secret language?

Why is the only child eager to mow the lawn too young to do it?

Why do fathers end up walking the kids’ good intentions? (The dog)

Why is there no place higher than dad’s shoulders and no place warmer than mum’s hugs?

And why is it that the simple act of sharing this meal can bring a whole family together?

San Remo. We’re family.”